Fourth Sunday of Easter

SIGNS OF THE RISEN CHRIST IN OUR PARISH COMMUNITY

Three weeks ago 25 adults were received into the Church at the Easter Vigil at St. Ignatius Loyola. Twelve adults were baptized, nine came into full communion with the Church and four Roman Catholics completed their full initiation into Catholic faith. They range in age from their early twenties to late fifties and come from as far away as Sweden, Japan, and Hong Kong and as close as New York City. In the spirit of Easter, a few of them share highlights of what has led them to worship Christ in the Catholic Church. They were searching and found a welcome here at St. Ignatius.

Jane Dryden - I was raised as an agnostic, and always tried to be as honest as possible to myself about my experience. While at a Jesuit university, I met many thoughtful Catholics whose faith I respected but did not share, since I had never had an experience of God – or so I thought. One day, though, I came to wonder: what if I had always had an experience of God, but hadn't known what to name it? Once I started wondering about this, and talking more carefully with my Catholic friends about their faith, it all just snowballed from there and I realized that God had always been part of my life and was now prompting me to come to know Him better. St. Ignatius was recommended to me as a Parish that I might like. And now here I am, a Catholic!

Jennifer Cooper - The thought of becoming Catholic had been weighing on my mind for months. Since my fiancé Rich is a devout Catholic, I wondered about becoming one. Would it make my relationship with God stronger? Would I be doing it for myself or for Rich? What would my family and friends think? Then I had my first "Catholic experience": heading to Central Park for a run, I jogged my usual route across East 84th Street and stopped at a red light. The large message board at St. Ignatius Loyola caught my eye: "Interested in Becoming A Catholic?" I stopped dead in my tracks and thought, "this must be a sign from God!" This push was exactly what was needed to start me on my quest of becoming a Catholic. I phoned the Church and my religious journey towards a lifelong relationship with Christ had begun! I have developed a closer, stronger relationship with God and am strengthened in my relationship with my fiancé, bringing it to a level I only could have dreamed about. I am truly so proud to refer to myself as Catholic, and look forward to this wonderful new beginning.

EASTER VIGIL AT ST. IGNATIUS 2007

Phil Fox Rose - I've been a spiritual seeker all my life. Raised an atheist by ex-Mormons, I journeyed through Quakerism and Buddhism. Centering Prayer acquainted me with Catholic monasticism, which I explored but abandoned. Last year, grace led me into a new close friendship with someone who embodies loving Catholicism. Our rich conversations about spiritual matters and my discovery of St. Augustine's writings helped me see the Church and a life of faith in an entirely new way. She guided me to St. Ignatius and as I sat near the back of the Church that first Sunday, though I had yet to "understand" the mysteries of the Trinity and Eucharist -- our amazing RCIA program would later fill those in -- the moment the plainchant began, I knew I was no longer a seeker. St. Augustine describes his conversion as returning home, and that's what it feels like for me. Like him, I also feel called. I'm long past my "formative years" and didn't convert for a spouse or child, yet I have found myself drawn to this sea change, this awakening, like it was inevitable. As the beautiful Jeremiah passage says, “You have seduced me, O God, and I have let myself be seduced.”

Jenny McLeod - When my Mom passed away two years ago, I would never have been able to get through my grief without my faith in God. I have always believed in God, but never thought that I needed to get baptized or confirmed. My desire to have God become a bigger part of my life has motivated me to become a Catholic. Since my family were already parishioners of St. Ignatius Loyola, I decided to join the RCIA. Furthermore I realized that I needed to set a good example for my daughter, who had recently received her First Communion. It is easy to tell her that I believe, but I also need to show her that I take our religion very seriously. The process of becoming a Catholic has drawn me closer to God and allowed me to commit to my life-long belief in God. I have felt peacefulness inside me since the Easter Vigil.

“At St. Ignatius I found a welcome and connection that I had not felt spiritually in quite some time.”

Justin Livengood - I decided to become a Catholic for many reasons: I attended a Jesuit university, my college roommate and close friend became a Jesuit priest, and my wife is Catholic. (We were married in a Catholic Church.) I decided to become a Catholic at St. Ignatius because my wife and I have been members for two years and we greatly enjoy the church community. My experience with the RCIA program has only strengthened my positive feelings about St. Ignatius.

Zorina Elizabeth Rivera - I had been to the Parish once and had enjoyed the Mass. Now I know that it was because Christ was working in my life. My cousin asked me to be her sponsor for Confirmation. I was a baptized Roman Catholic, but had not received First Communion or Confirmation. I decided that this was the push I needed to bring myself closer to God and the Church. This is something I had been longing for, but never seemed to prioritize. At St. Ignatius I found a welcome and connection that I had not felt spiritually in quite some time. I became more aware of God’s presence in my life and in the lives of all those that God had sent to guide me. I have grown in my relationship with God and enjoy the fellowship that our Christian community has to offer. I have heard Christ call my name... something I will never forget. I know this is only the first phase of my spiritual journey; I look forward with renewed faith to what lies ahead.

Dyanne Ursula - When I was a pre-teen in Escondido, California, I’d turn off my bedroom light at night and listen to the rosary on the Catholic radio station broadcast out of Mexico. I found the rhythmic sounds of the “Hail Mary’s” and “Our Father’s” soothing to me. That was my first acquaintance with anything Catholic in my life. In my twenties I had a Catholic friend who took me into the Mission churches when we were sightseeing in San Diego. I remember sitting calmly in the silence as she lit a candle. The memory always stayed with me because there was chaos in my life then. Several years passed, and I found myself at the Mission again, this time to attend a meeting. Afterwards, with another Catholic friend, I stayed and attended Ash Wednesday services. That year I gave something up for Lent for the first time. Through the years many of my friends have been Catholic, people who were and are very special to me. I began to attend Mass in my forties, and did so for a few years until one day I felt called to join the Catholic Church myself.

Ansley Dauenhauer - Mark and I have been married for 11 ½ years. I was staunchly Episcopalian and prayed fervently that Mark would convert. I had also experienced how the Catholic Community, at least as it is at St. Ignatius, felt like home. Last year as a family we attended the Wallace Hall Mass in our quest for a Church home in New York. I had also come across the parish bulletin notice, “Interested in Becoming Catholic?” That line kept coming back to me over the months.

My husband and I deeply honored the Eucharist as the central act of worship in our respective denominations; the importance the Catholic Church placed on preparation for First Communion led us to register our daughter for CCD classes. I was also curious about what she would learn. My inquiry into Catholic faith began with trembling fingers that dialed the Parish office at St. Ignatius. While I considered myself pretty religious, I began to encounter God in so many people and in unexpected places. I had been looking for my personal “a-ha” moment; instead I experienced the Parish community and the inquiry sessions as more of a “warm bath.” If the idea of a prayerful life, to paraphrase Nouwen, is to experience absolutely everything in relation to God, I was slowly discovering prayer everywhere and was becoming immersed in Him. Not only was He in my children, in whom I have always had glimpses of the Almighty; He was in our unplanned adoption of a dog! He was in the people I saw everyday, and He was rooted in what they were saying to me. I was learning more than I could imagine from nearly everyone I encountered. I found myself enthused by my children’s school projects and community projects. Thinking about how amazing the past year of my spiritual quest has been evokes a sense of peace and purpose. I’m still amazed that I’m Catholic!

THE IGNATIAN VOLUNTEER CORPS

YOUR MOST IMPORTANT WORK MAY BEGIN AFTER YOU RETIRE

The NYC chapter of the Ignatian Volunteer Corps will host two information sessions for retired men and women in early May. The Ignatian Volunteer Corps provides semi-retired and retired adults age 50 and over the opportunity to volunteer two days a week at local schools and nonprofits serving the needs of people who are both economically impoverished and educationally disadvantaged. Volunteers work with children, teens, the elderly, new immigrants, and many others experiencing economic and social hardship. Through their service, Ignatian Volunteers work for a more just society, while also growing deeper in Christian faith by reading, reflecting, and praying in the Jesuit tradition, on a monthly basis with other volunteers.

Applications are welcome for the 2007-08 volunteer year.

A spectacular “museum-within-the-museum” for the display of its extraordinary collection of Hellenistic, Etruscan, South Italian and Roman art - much of it unseen in New York for generations - opened at The Metropolitan Museum of Art in April in its New Greek and Roman Galleries. After more than five years of construction, the long-awaited opening concludes a 15-year project for the complete redesign and reinstallation of the Museum’s superb collection of classical art. Returning to public view in the new space are thousands of long-stored works from the Metropolitan’s collection, which is considered one of the finest in the world. The centerpiece of the New Greek and Roman Galleries is the majestic Leon Levy and Shelby White Court - a monumental, peristyle court for the display of Hellenistic and Roman art, with a soaring two-story atrium.

PAX CHRISTI METRO NEW YORK BENEFIT DINNER

On Saturday, May 5th, Pax Christi Metro New York will be honoring four remarkable peacemakers: Immaculée Ilibagiza survived the Rwandan genocide hidden in a tiny bathroom for 91 days with seven other women. She spent most of her time praying the rosary and reading the Bible. When she was released, she forgave those who had committed genocide against her family and nearly one million of her countrymen. Carmen Paolercio and Helga Moor have been working tirelessly against the current genocide in Darfur, Sudan. Sr. Eileen McCann, CSJ, works as a legal aid attorney for victims of domestic violence here in New York City and has served Pax Christi Metro New York in numerous capacities for two decades. Help us honor these worthy women at a dinner in the NYU Catholic Center, starting at 6:30 PM. Contact 212-420-0250 or nypaxchristi@igc.org for details.
