A couple of months ago, the members of the Music Staff set out to answer the question: What do you do during the week? At that time, we heard from Scott Warren, Nancianne Parrella, Michael Sheetz, and Philip Anderson. Today, Maureen Haley, Sara Murphy, and Bobby Reuter give us a bit of ‘behind the scenes’ detail into their roles as music ministers.

Maureen Haley,
Director of Children’s Choirs

I direct the four Children’s Choirs at St. Ignatius: Training Choirs I and II, Middle School Choir, and High School Choir. Students in these choirs attend a total of 12 different schools in New York City! I work with the Grammar School, the IREP program, and the church staff to recruit singers, to secure rehearsal times and spaces, to transport children, to plan liturgies, concert programs, and choir trips, and to collaborate on all aspects of the program. Some folks ask where I find the music that the children sing. Usually the source is one of the following: I have performed it with another choir or Vacation Bible School; I have seen it in the choral library here; or sometimes I have heard a different children’s choir perform a piece that I think our children would enjoy, and that meets our skill level while at the same time challenging us with something new. I am at the church regularly on Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Sundays, and on additional days when special rehearsals or other events take place. During the months of September, December, and January, I audition new singers. I can sometimes be found singing with different children’s choirs perform a piece that I think our children

Bobby Reuter,
Associate Director of Music

Two of my main responsibilities are directing the music at the 7:30 PM Sunday evening liturgy, and creating the weekly Mass programs. Preparation for the music at the 7:30 Mass typically starts a few months in advance. I begin the process of hymn and anthem selection by carefully reviewing the weekly readings. Then, based on the text or overall idea of the readings, I choose hymns and anthems. I next move on to the necessary musical details – which pieces are to be led by the piano, and which by the organ, and how the choir can best phrase a text to ensure clarity. If there is an anthem chosen for a particular Sunday, I’ll need time to learn it and plan how to prepare the choir to sing it. There is also a lot of logistical planning and furniture moving that must be done prior to rehearsal and Mass. When Sunday arrives, everything (hopefully!) is ready for rehearsal in the choir room. We begin with exercises that prepare the singers’ bodies, breath, minds, voices, and ears, and then we practice the hymns and service music for that evening’s liturgy. After a brief sound check in the church, we move into the sacristy for some time to center and to pray – and then sing the Mass!

Sara Murphy,
Music Administrator and Executive Director, Sacred Music in a Sacred Space

As Executive Director of Sacred Music in a Sacred Space, I manage the advertising, marketing, communications, ticketing, programs, merchandise, fundraising, and general operations for the concert series. By the conclusion of the 2012-2013 season, we will have presented six choral concerts, five organ recitals, and one vocal recital.

As administrator of the Music Department, I also handle the liturgical fundraising drives such as the Christmas and Easter Music Funds, as well as general accounting, payroll, and scheduling. While these business aspects of the concert series and music department are rewarding, my favorite role at St. Ignatius is singing as a member of the professional Choir of St. Ignatius Loyola, as a soloist, and as a cantor.

Please join us this afternoon at 3:00 PM as we celebrate the 20th anniversary of the Mander Organ. Andrew Henderson, Renée Anne Louprette, Kent Tittle, and K. Scott Warren will join forces to put our landmark instrument through its paces!
