Our Sacred Music in a Sacred Space concert on Wednesday might well be called Peace Without—Peace Within, because of the textual themes we will explore. This is our first choral concert in a season focused on the works of American composers. As is the case with artists the world over, American composers have long been outspoken proponents for peace, even as our politicians and captains of industry lag behind.

Leonard Bernstein, a great American statesman in his own right, was adamant about our ability to live together in harmony, and much of his work in music and other intellectual spheres was devoted to this cause. His beloved Chichester Psalms was written in 1965, in the shadow of the Cold War and rising tensions in the Middle East. Commissioned by the Dean of Chichester Cathedral, this three-movement work features passages from the Psalms, sung in Hebrew, which I believe offer a rough parallel of the evolution of human political history.

The first movement begins with what could be read as an invocation at the dawn of human consciousness: Awake, psaltery and harp! I will rouse the dawn! (Psalm 108:2). Then follows a boisterous, raucous reading of the 100th Psalm: Shout for joy to the Lord, all the earth....

The second movement juxtaposes the 23rd Psalm, sung by a countertenor (representative of the Psalmist David as a child) with the words of Psalm 2: Why do the nations rage so furiously together, and why do the people imagine a vain thing? sung by the men of the choir in a gruff fashion that evokes images of prehistoric warriors holding a pep rally around the campfire. Bernstein pairs these texts with the clear message that the Lord is our shepherd, yet conflict surrounds us. About halfway through the movement, as our prehistoric warriors are shouting and grunting, the women of the chorus return gently with: You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies. It is a striking and poignant moment, heartbreaking in its innocence, full of wise insight into our quest for solace and stability amidst chaos.

Ignorant armies clash by night, in the discordant opening of the final movement. In between the dissonant passages, one of the “Lord is my Shepherd” melodies from the previous movement peeks through like a ray of sunlight. Then, back to clashing and conflict, which eventually winds down, allowing the choir to intone the serenity of Psalm 131: Lord, Lord, my heart is not haughty, nor mine eyes lofty...surely I have calmed and quieted myself as a weaned child.

The piece concludes transcendently with unaccompanied voices, singing as softly as humanly possible: Behold how good and how pleasant it is for us to dwell together in unity (Psalm 133:1).

Peace without, indeed.

Our evening concludes with Voices of Light, a five movement work by the late Stephen Paulus. The texts are drawn from the works of two 13th century mystics, Mechtild of Magdeburg and Hadewijch II (probably of Antwerp). Both women are thought to have lived as Beguines, a lay religious order in Northern Europe, semi-monastic, but not taking formal vows. These texts are remarkable in their ability to transcend time, culture, and dogma. They might as well have been written by a Zen monk, a Sufi poet, a Kabbalist rabbi, or a Jesuit—three thousand, three hundred, thirty, or three years ago. Or perhaps last week. My personal favorite, by Hadewijch:

You who want Knowledge, Seek the Oneness Within
There you Will find Already waiting.

The evening concludes with the words of Mechtild, How God comes to the Soul:

I descend on my love / As dew on a flower.

Peace within.

Lest I leave you with the impression that those are the only pieces on the program, we will also feature Bernstein’s Missa Brevis for choir and percussion, and Samuel Barber’s haunting favorite Adagio for Strings, which Barber himself transcribed for choir, using the Agnus Dei text. The evening opens with Norman Luboff’s incomparable arrangement of the African-American Spiritual, Deep River. I hope you will join us this Wednesday evening, October 28, at 7:00 PM, for this powerful beginning of our choral season.

“If we — all of us — accept the grace of Jesus Christ, he changes our heart and from sinners makes us saints. To become holy we do not need to turn our eyes away and look somewhere else, or have as it were the face on a holy card! No, no, that is not necessary. To become saints only one thing is necessary: to accept the grace that the Father gives us in Jesus Christ. There, this grace changes our heart. We continue to be sinners for we are weak, but with this grace which makes us feel that the Lord is good, that the Lord is merciful, that the Lord waits for us, that the Lord pardons us — this immense grace that changes our heart.”

— Pope Francis, The Church of Mercy
